1 When establishing a business relationship, the financial intermediary must verify the identity of the customer on the basis of a document of evidentiary value. Where the customer is a legal entity, the financial intermediary must acknowledge the provisions regulating the power to bind the legal entity, and verify the identity of the persons who enter into the business relationship on behalf of the legal entity.\textsuperscript{26}

2 In the case of cash transactions with a customer whose identity has not yet been identified, the duty to verify identity applies only if one transaction, or two or more transactions that appear to be connected, involve a considerable financial value.

3 Insurance institutions must verify the identity of the customer if the amount of a single premium, the regular premium or the total of the premiums involves a considerable financial value.

4 If in cases under paragraphs 2 or 3 there is any suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing, the identity of the customer must be verified even if the relevant amounts have not been reached.\textsuperscript{27}

5 FINMA, the Federal Gaming Board (FGB)\textsuperscript{28} and the self-regulatory organisations shall determine what constitutes a considerable financial value within the meaning of paragraphs 2 and 3 in their respective fields and adjust such values as required.\textsuperscript{29}

Art. 4\textsuperscript{30} Establishing the identity of the beneficial owner

1 The financial intermediary must identify the beneficial owner with the due diligence required in the circumstances. If the customer is a listed company or a subsidiary over which a listed company has majority control, the identity of the beneficial owner need not be established.

2 The financial intermediary must obtain a written declaration from the customer as to the identity of the individual who is the beneficial owner if:

a. the customer is not the beneficial owner or if there is any doubt about the matter;

b. the customer is a domiciliary company or an operating legal entity; or

Art. 5 Repetition of the verification of the identity of the customer or the establishment of the identity of the beneficial owner

2 In the case of an insurance policy that may be surrendered, the insurance institution must also re-establish the identity of the beneficial owner if, in the event of a claim or the surrender of the policy, the person entitled to benefit is not the same person identified at the time that the insurance contract was concluded.

Art. 6

Special duties of due diligence

1 The financial intermediary is required to ascertain the nature and purpose of the business relationship wanted by the customer. The extent of the information that must be obtained, the hierarchical level at which the decision to enter into or continue a business relationship must be taken and the regularity of checks are determined by the risk represented by the customer.

   a. the transaction or the business relationship appears unusual, unless its legality is clear;

   b. there are indications that assets are the proceeds of a felony or an aggravated tax misdemeanour under Article 305bis number 1bis SCC or are subject to the power of disposal of a criminal organisation (Art. 260ter no 1 SCC) or serve the financing of terrorism (Art. 260quinque para. 1 SCC);
